Eucharist and Martyrdom

from the Ancient Catacombs to the Communist Prisons
Alba Iulia, 6-8 May 2014, Romania

Argument:

“My children, let us be brave! We have lost everything we had in this world, at least we can save our souls by washing away our sins in our blood.” This was the exhortation given by the Romanian ruler Constantin Brâncoveanu to his sons before they all died together; the promise of earthly life in exchange for denying Christ was not sufficient to convince them, so they were slaughtered one by one in front of their father, who was killed after them.

Although warned by Christ on the coming tribulations (John 16:33) Christians could not anticipate the cruelty of the confrontation with secular political systems. Among these, Communism was the most insidious and probably the cruelest one. How did Christians survive in that world of terror? How much of the essence of the faith could the Church defend in a world of systemic atheism? and Who are the new Martyrs of the faith? These are questions on which the teaching staff of the Faculty of Theology in Alba Iulia invites you – scientists, theologians, sociologists and politicians – to reflect.

In order to reconcile ourselves with the past, we must know it and understand it.

General information:

Located in the heart of Transylvania, Alba Iulia has won the privilege of being “the soul capital of the Romanians”, place and seal of a historical moment consecrating the union of The Romanian Principalities - Moldavia, Wallachia and Transylvania – into a single state: Romania.

An ancient Roman town and the medieval capital of the Transylvanian Principality, Alba Iulia is also a historical centre of Romanian culture and spirituality that produced some of the first books printed in Romanian language (The New Testament - 1648), and which also hosts one of the most famous codices in the world – Codex Aureus (9th century), preserved along with others manuscripts and rare incunabula in the Batthyaneum Library.

Looking for places and facts to enrich their minds and souls, the tireless researchers will not refuse the pleasure to meet history at home in Alba Iulia. The whole city is an open air museum inviting you to a simultaneous excursion to a Roman fortress and a medieval burg. The three fortifications, recently restored by the municipality, will provide lasting memories in a setting where nothing is missing in order to make one feel a witness of the past.

Topics:

- Christian Life during the Communist Regime, surviving into a hostile atheistic system;
- In the Belly of the Beast: Confessing Christ into the prison darkness;
- What Choice for the Church? Between Scylla and Charybdis;
- The Chalice of hope: The Eucharist as medicine and Christian energizer during political storms.

Call for papers:

We would like to request all those wishing to contribute to the conference to submit an abstract of their contribution before March 8th, 2014 (at least 500 words) to the symposium secretariat at: secretariat@issta.ro. All submitted texts must be prepared in English (UK) as an MS Word document, using 12 Times New Roman font, single spacing. In order to be presented at the symposium, all selected works will be reviewed by the scientific committee, which will send you an answer of acceptance until the 15th of March, 2014.

- 1.) A volume of works presented will be published before the symposium opening, as a supplement to the Altarul Reintegrării Journal. The deadline for receipt of the full text manuscripts is March 31st, 2014. Manuscript requirements and form of the symposium book can be downloaded from the Altarul Reintegrării Journal's website (<http://fto.ro/altarul-reintegrarii>).
- 2.) A special issue of European Journal of Science and Theology (ISI – Thomson Reuters) containing some selected works will be published after the symposium closure. In order to prepare their works according to EJUST norms, the authors will be contacted by the scientific committee after Symposium closure.
